We have heard Mr. Lakhani on the last date as well as today and did not find substantial material to intervene as far as impugned order passed on applications under order VII Rule 11 CPC is concerned as the observations therein are of interim nature subject to application of law at the final outcome of the suit. He has then submitted that since appellant's case apparently rested on some legal issues, he may be permitted to raise some points that may be relevant for the purposes of deciding the controversy involved in the suit conclusively. No such permission is required from this Court for the appellant for moving any application or raise any issue before learned Single Judge, to be dealt with law, hence with this observation we do not find any material to intervene in the findings as recorded by learned Single Judge in the impugned order and appeals are accordingly disposed of in the above terms, along with listed applications. Insofar as the final conclusion of the suit is concerned, needless to mention that all orders of the interim nature passed on interlocutory applications at the interlocutory stages of the proceedings of suit, for the purpose of final outcome of the suit are substantially tentative in nature unless the conclusivity is apparent and obvious.
