1. Granted.

2. The application for restoration of this petition appears to be miserably time barred as no tangible or plausible explanation has been forwarded by the learned counsel for filing this application after more than one year of the order dated 17.11.2016. It is a well established principle of law that if an application has been filed after the period provided for such application, which in this case is 30 days, than the delay of each day is to be explained. Although the learned counsel for the appellant has claimed that the petitioner was declared karo and to that effect he has submitted affidavits of two persons but the same do not identify as to when and by whom the petitioner was declared karo and when such decision was taken aback enabling him to appear before this Court and file this application. Therefore, we are of the view that this application being time barred is not maintainable and accordingly is dismissed.
